Multi-million dollar makeover for Airport Hotel

A multi-million dollar top-to-toe makeover of the Hamilton Airport Hotel will deliver a destination restaurant plus 4-star conference and accommodation facilities for the region.

The revamped 62-room hotel will be complete by Christmas 2019 under the management of family-owned Jet Park Hotel Hamilton Limited from May 2019. Ownership of the hotel will remain with Waikato Regional Airport Limited (WRAL). WRAL purchased the hotel in Jan'18 as part of its strategy to grow non-aeronautical revenue streams.

WRAL chief executive Mark Morgan acknowledged the role of Bruce Parker and his team who have leased the hotel since WRAL bought it. Jet Park, which already operates hotels in both Rotorua and Auckland, had a proven track record in outstanding hotel management and shared WRAL's vision, he said.

"This will not be a budget-style facility. We want a high standard of accommodation with a range of other quality offerings including a restaurant, bar and extensive conferencing facilities at the hotel and terminal. Our growing regional visitor market, along with the increase in flights coming in and out of Hamilton shows the demand is there and growing. Let's get on and deliver it."

The existing hotel will remain open during the refurbishment programme which will be project managed by WRAL and Jet Park. Jet Park owner Liz Herrmann said the hotel, to be rebranded as part of the Jet Park group, would offer an "exceptional gateway to Hamilton and the Waikato. The location and facility has absolutely enormous potential and we will be refurbishing it from top to bottom. Nothing will be the same. We'll be starting with bed linen and ending with a brand new commercial kitchen and destination restaurant plus outstanding conferencing facilities", she said.

"We want to create something really vibrant and take advantage of the beautiful gardens and the wonderful green space which is something you just don't get everywhere. In that respect, we think there is also potential for weddings and other functions so there is a lot of opportunity on the site."

As well as a Qualmark 4-star hotel rating, Jet Park would aim to secure silver status for environmental responsibility and sustainable management. The hotel would showcase original New Zealand artwork and Jet Park would look specifically for works from Waikato-based artists, Liz Herrmann said. The hotel will be a showcase and gateway to the region so let's celebrate that."

Life post-SPCA and reflections by Bob Kerridge

Jet Park Airport Hotel and Conference Centre owners, Liz Herrmann and John Lateulere have long been avid supporters of the SPCA both in South Africa and here in New Zealand; 'SPCA is a cause close to our hearts, and is a charity supported by Jet Park Hotels. Ever since we bought the property on which we built the original hotel Bob Kerridge has been a wonderful neighbour and friend to Jet Park Hotels'.

Bob Kerridge has enjoyed 32 years' service as Executive Director of the Auckland SPCA. A man with deep compassion and conviction, a campaigner for animals and their welfare. Bob has almost single-handedly transformed the organisation into what it is today.

Bob Kerridge shares with us a little insight on what he's been up to post-SPCA, his long-standing relationship with Jet Park Hotel Auckland, our pet stay rooms, and future projects he's involved with...

Jet Park Hotel: Welcome to your "home away from home" Bob. Can you give us a brief background and highlights of your association with Jet Park Hotel?

Bob Kerridge: Well, it goes back a very long way- It started just as a paddock and because we are just across the road we could keep a close eye on it so we watched it grow. We came to the opening of the very first wing, then the second accommodation block and just recently to the opening of the magnificent conference centre. It has been a wonderful story of success and growth. I think if I had to summarize it, I would say that everything is getting bigger and better.

Jet Park Hotel: We're proud that we are major sponsors of the SPCA. Can you tell us some of your stand-out moments of our sponsorship?

Bob Kerridge: I think the wonderful thing is it really is a reflection of your leadership here... there is the passion for animals which is shared by the staff and is reflected in the way they perform as a team. There have been events here which have included our very special volunteers who are very important to us in operating and providing services to the SPCA. But on the other hand, when we are here, we are very conscious that this is a team effort - the staff here, in their various capacities, no matter what it is, whether big or small, they are all personally involved. And that I think is the ingredient of great hospitality ... people working together as a well-knit team, interacting and working together with passion - Jet Park has it all which is why it is indeed our home away from home!
